

The Military Residency Application Process: What to Know and How to Differentiate Yourself

Who: Lt Col Jon Maust (U.S. Air Force), Maj Matthew Baker (U.S. Air Force), LTC Samuel Preston (U.S. Army), CDR Monica Ormeno (U.S. Navy), CDR James Hegarty (U.S. Navy), and Dr. James C. West (USUHS)

What: Military Psychiatry Specialty and Program Leaders will discuss how to successfully navigate the residency and fellowship application process and how to be competitive. A curriculum vitae and recommendation letter writing workshop will also be provided for the non-applicant resident and psychiatrist.

AGENDA

1800-1810: A brief introduction of the panel

1810-1900: Breakout sessions for letter and CV Writing and for each service branch to discuss application process and questions about residency and fellowship programs. Covered topics will include the point system, timeline, requirements, CV and personal statement, tips for rotations, and more!

Why: This is an excellent opportunity for medical students and residents who wish to gain a better appreciation for the application process and learn from the specialty leaders in how to differentiate yourself. Attendees will have an opportunity to directly interact with the specialty leaders and chiefs of each residency program in breakout sessions and are encouraged to come prepared with questions! For the fellowship applicants and career staff looking to hone their CV and letter writing skills, a separate workshop will be provided during the breakout sessions!
